CREDIT CONTROL AND DEBT COLLECTION

Reduced cash flow due to non-collection of overdue accounts is a common problem for many businesses. This course shows how to deal with slow paying debtors while maintaining good customer relations. The course deals with interdepartmental cooperation, communication/control systems and overall policies in simple clear terms. It covers personal effectiveness skills for Credit Controllers and techniques to use the telephone and other communication tools for business advantage. It is suitable for Participants new to the field of credit control & debt collection but the course would also be useful for people already working in the area who want to reappraise their approach to improve results.

Duration 1 day

OBJECTIVES

Having completed this training the participants will:

Gain a clear overview of how credit control & debt collection fits into business activities and the support systems required for effective credit control and cash collection.

Understand the common goals shared with other departments and how these other departments can help in credit control & debt collection.

Agree on the key behaviours of an effective credit controller.

Gain or rediscover at least two significant techniques & practices to improve their performance.

Commit to transfer the skills, knowledge and attitudes from the programme to the workplace to develop "best sustainable practice" in their work.
